answer of that kin i if this is put in as one defense. If they demur generally, it is answered that there is in the pleading a perfect defense that is a State defense. If they demur specifically, then there is no complete defense in the part that they demur to. It is not stated as a separate defense. In this embarrassment, if your Honors please, we feel quite reluctant to enter into the discussion of the Federal defense under a demurrer which may be overruled on a technicality. To argue the demurrer upon these matters is to argue the whole case, as we understand it. We are quite willing to do so and quite willing to present the case in that manner to the Court, but would like, as a matter of order in the pleadings, so that there may be no technical objection to our demurrer, that this defense be segregated and separate.

ated and separate. Justice Field-You can put it in your demurre You can demur so much as lies in the rederal defense and so much as lies on other matters. If there is anything inertistic in the drawing of the answer we would not allow that to prejudice your case at all in any way whatever. As I understand it, the answer sets up three defenses.

First.—That the whole system of taxation—the system of taxation against railroad companies is different from what it is in the assessment against ther property.

Second—That matters were included in the as-

But it is feared, as some objection has been made on the former case, to going up, as it were, upon a stip-ulated statement of facts which may or may not be fictitious, and charged in some quarters to be ficti-tious, that the same objections might be urged here were this case argued on demurrer. Justice Field—Whatever you do I want you to put Atterney-General-I understand that we are ad-Atterney-General—I understand that we are addressing ourselves to this case because the Supreme Court thought that a demurfer was not the proper way to present the case to them. Your Honors listened to that argument in the other case nine days, and I think the ple-dings were all that they could be, and I feel embarrassed as to what we are doing here. There is a case gone up that was as full as we can make it now.

Justice Field - I thought so; but you are aware of the fact that imputations may be made by even honorable members of the bar; and there were imputations in that case, and even the position of ex-tions in that case, and even the position of ex-Supreme Justice of the State did not save counsel from charges of impropriety.

Attorney-General—Your Honors see what a posi-Attorney-General—Your Honors see what a posi-tion I, as Attorney-General of the State, would be in if I was to agree to the former stipulation and argue the case on the same line as before, and per-haps not argue it so weil, for the Attorney-General's office is filed with a different class of officers now. What a position would I be in, sup-posing I should review that stipulation and send a case to the Supreme Court on precisely the same facts as before.

posing I should review that supulation and send a case to the Supreme Court on precisely the same facts as before.

Justice Field—No, you leave your mortgage. The mortgage is on record now, which it was not before. The mortgage is attached to the record as an exhibit. A great deal was said before that the mortgage was not there, and there was some impression that the mortgage contained some $40,080 a mile and the answer showed only $3,000. And there were some who insisted that the mortgage might affect the rights. You have the mortgage now, I think the Supreme Court wants to know the revenue system of this State, and see if it has regarded the fundamental principles of law in the assessment of property. I certainly have no feeling about the case at all. I want to do justice. Surely, if I have any desire, it is that my decisions shall be right, for if they are not, they will be ultimately overthrown, and if they are right they will stand. So I have no feeling about it. If you convince me I am wrong, I will be the first person to set aside my judgment.

Attorney-General—Speaking frankly, Judge, it would be the idlest thing in the world to undertake to overturn that decision in a three or four hours' argument, from what little I know about it. Your Honors want a written opinion.

Justice Field—I have on a written opinion reversed myself in the Supreme Court.

this case, and have all the facts questioned and brought out.

Justice Field—I think, Mr. Attorney-General—though I would not advise—I think the man who stands at the head of the law department of the State can take upon himself the responsibility of admitting what cannot be denied, and not put the Court or the counsel to the trouble of proving what is a matter of record. I do not suggest it. I would not make any suggestion in the case whatever. But the State must be in a poor condition that will question the privilege of its chief law efficer.

Attorney-General—The State is in a poor condition. It is in a position to question the privilege of anything and anybody, and I, of all men, can sided to make no experiments. I saw a notice the other day that everybody who was at a certain meeting was a lawyer, with the exception of the Attorney-General—The State is in a poor condition that we cannot be exception of the Attorney-General—And in that same spirit I do not propose to exercise any discretion, or venture acything upon the Attorney-General's knowledge of supthing in the practice of law. I propose to do what I thought we came here to do, to improve the record by show what debt exists from this corporation to the State under the revenue laws of the State and under the access. I want to try and show what debt exists from this corporation to the State under the revenue laws of the State and under the revenue laws of the State and under the case. Judge Sawyer—As to the allegation that when the assessment was made there was no deduction on account of the mortgage, I suppose that there will be no dispute on that; to when you come to sit down in all probability there will be few, if any, pure questions of fact not agreed upon; and on these I suppose the evidence will be conclusive one way or the other. Why not draw up findings on a statement and present it to the Court, and then, if you have any evidence, let that be put in, and then the whole case decided.

Mr. Rhodes—That is a sensible way, but it involves the same difficulty as before.

June, 1862 Smith took an appeal from this decision to the United States District Court, where it has been allowed, by him, to slumber. Judge Hoffman has dismissed the appeal for want of prosecution.

The Trustees of the Home of the Irebriate have filed with the Supervisors a report of that institution for the fiscal year and ing June 30, 1883, and showing: Whole number of admissions, 965; discharged, Attorney-General—I believe the people who made the Constitution of California did not propose that there should be other than equality. It was made by a ground swell. Your Honors will agree with me that after the accusations that have been made the case had better been tried.

Justice Field—I have no suggestion to make. We are to sit here and try every question presented to us. Certainly, if a fact is a matter of record, why do you want any evidence about it? If your proper officers have kept proper records, and they are adduced, that is an end of it.

Attorney-General—It would be safer to see all the records they have.

THE PENDING STRIKE.

The reading between the lines of the press reports ceming over the wires from telegraphic managers shows clearly that the companies are greatly distressed by the telegraphers' withdrawal from the service. It could not be otherwise. Thousands of skilled operatives cannot abandon a business suddenly without inflicting upon it Ireland-not the system now proposed, much injury, and greatly disarranging its however-and still of being strictly loyal domestic discipline. It is to be hoped that this distress will continue until the companies are forced to yield, for right sides with and now proposes to see the country for the operators, if ever it arrayed itself in himself, and privately, as any other cultany cause. But these are all considerations of the surface. Away behind this whole movement is a secret cause, which brought about, unintentionally, the present agitation. The Western Union Telegraph Company - rich, powerful, exacting - determined to enlarge its gains. To do this, it resolved upon a speedy method and fixed upon the plan of watering its stock. But to accomplish it with the success desired, the necessity existed of being able to float the stock upon the placid waters of fat dividends present and prospective. With the conception of this plan began the cinching process, which has gone on year by year, until the desired low plane of recompense for the labor of faithful employes was reached. At that time, within a year, the watered stock to the tune of Sa6,000,000 was floated in foreign markets. The damage to crops the subject of much political criticism because her is incalculable.
